

Disclaimer

The pages within this web site are informational only and do not provide legal advice. Visiting this web site does not create an attorney-client relationship. You should not act on information contained within this site, but instead should seek legal counsel. Schopf & Weiss LLP is a copyright owner of all of the material within this site, including the text, images, and animation material, and the firm reserves all rights with respect to that material. However, you may view, download, and copy for your own personal use the pages of this web site. No statement about the successes of the firm or its attorneys should be construed to imply that in future cases the firm or its attorneys will obtain similar results. While the firm has experience in many areas of litigation practice, the Supreme Court of Illinois does not recognize certifications or specialties in the practice of law; accordingly, no statement contained within this site should be construed to imply that lawyers are certified, are specialists or are experts in particular areas. This site is sponsored by the law firm of Schopf & Weiss LLP. Individual lawyers at the firm are responsible for the content of their biographies.

Additionally, please do not send us any information about any legal question or problem you may have. Unsolicited communication by you through this Web site, by e-mail or other electronic communication, or generally is not confidential and does not establish an attorney-client relationship with Schopf & Weiss LLP or its attorneys. That means we cannot agree to treat any such communications as confidential and that we do not become your attorneys when you send such a communication to us. Our professional obligations require that before accepting any new client or new matter, we must determine whether there are any actual or potential conflicts with any of our existing or former clients. If you wish to inquire about becoming a client of the firm, please request a personal interview. We will not consider any communication regarding new client representation other than a request for a personal interview, and we will not accept legal representation unless we do so through a signed, written agreement.

Schopf & Weiss LLP is an Illinois registered limited liability partnership that has elected to be governed by the Illinois Uniform Partnership Act.